I cannot deal with the feels I am having today. I do not know what to do with them or how to handle any of it. This life isn't getting any better. It's becoming much worse. How am I meant to deal with everything that is going on in this life?

Changes happen for a reason. There isn't anything which cannot take place without some kind of change which happens. So here we are at the end of the day, waiting and hoping something better will come along from any of it. Such a life must come about because it has to.

Anything. Everything can and will happen and take place. It has got to happen long before anything else. If it doesn't, everything else will come crashing down all around us. There can be no safety net. We will all come down to nothing. This life is meant to fail.

However, if we do not try and grasp anything that happens, we are doomed to repeat it and we will come out at the bottom of the pile. This life will continue to roll on without us.

It is a fact that life doesn't stick around waiting for you to make a move. It will find a way to continue on without you.

Why would it stick around waiting for you to begin with?

There's no reason for it.
