

Eat Your Vitamins

January 12, 2019

It is an interesting thought that which President Russel M. Nelson spoke about regarding the restoration. Here is the exact quote:

“We're witnesses to a process of restoration,” said the prophet. “If you think the Church has been fully restored, you're just seeing the beginning. There is much more to come. ... Wait till next year. And then the next year. Eat your vitamin pills. Get your rest. It's going to be exciting.”¹

We've been taught over the years by many different people at General Conference, in Ensign articles, in church meetings etc. that Joseph Smith restored the full gospel of Jesus Christ. That he restored all of the ordinances pertinent to our salvation. Yet, here we are some 188 years later after the organization of the church and we learn that the restoration is still on going.

To say I am confused about it, would be an understatement.

I mean, here we have other prophets and apostles speaking about how we are in the fullness of times. That Joseph Smith restored in full the gospel. The things we need to be able to get back into heaven etc. Yet, now we are told the opposite. There is more to come. More to come? Not only more to come but it will be exciting. So says the prophet.

It feels difficult to accept to be honest. I do not know how best to accept any of these things that are said. I understand the fact that people believe in continuing revelation.

Shouldn't that revelation be out to the whole world and not focused on God's one true church? It would appear that these revelations are only inclusive to those of the Mormon faith. Does God not want to speak to the rest of his children? Wouldn't He have a message for the rest of those who are not of the “only true and living church on the face of the earth?”

The question stands.

¹ Latter-day Saint Prophet, Wife and Apostle Share Insights of Global Ministry - Newsroom Article